Who are you?

Please feel free to write me something that gives me context to your illness. This can really be anything that feels relevant for me to know. If you need a starting point, I'm often interested in who you are in the world, what is important to you, and what you are proud of. I'm also interested the story of how your illness unfolded, and what it had meant in your life. If this is for a child, what has the illness been like for the family? This can be long, but it doesn't have to be. Even a few short notes on things not covered in the questionnaire can be helpful. If you'd rather not do this, and just talk when we meet, that is fine too.
